PAACS RESIDENT TESTIMONY

My name is Dr. Ogonnaya Ifeanyichukwu. I am from Nigeria. I became born again in December 1995 after hearing the word of God. I repented of my sins, asked the Lord Jesus to forgive my sins and to come into my life as my Lord and Savior. This was the day I became a new creation in Christ Jesus. Since then, the Lord has given me the grace to follow and obey his words.

I came across the PAACS website after my graduation from medical school, and I loved the huge impact being made by PAACS in Africa in training and discipling African surgeons to provide quality health services. I then subscribed to PAACS monthly newsletter to learn more about this wonderful organization. In 2016, I received an email asking me if I knew anyone who would want to be trained through the PAACS program. I felt God opened a door for me to possibly serve him as a surgeon. I then forwarded my application and prayed that the will of God be done concerning my application. I was selected after an interview and here I am serving God as a PAACS resident surgeon at Mbingo Baptist Hospital in Cameroon.

As a PAACS surgeon besides surgical competency, I am being taught Christian virtues such as humility, integrity, and compassionate care for my patients and total dependency on God for all things. I very much appreciate the LORD who brought me to PAACS to have these combinations of qualities in surgical training, which may be hard to get in any other surgical training programs elsewhere in Africa. I hope to serve God by being the best surgeon who provides quality and loving and care to my patients.

Glory to my Lord, amen.
